'GIVE US AN HONEST BREAK'

INDEPENDENT traders, local politicians and business experts have held a summit to keep up the pressure on Government to rethink its huge hikes in business rates.

From April, hundreds of Hackney businesses will have to find tens of thousands of pounds extra. Some face an increase of over £100,000. There will be similar rises over the following four years, and many owners fear they will be forced to close.

This is because the Government has revalued their premises, which business rates are based on, and property prices have doubled in parts of Hackney.

About 80 small business owners turned out for the summit on 24 February at Hackney House. They heard speeches from Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville; MP for Hackney South and Shoreditch, Meg Hillier; Sue Terpilowski from the Federation of Small Businesses; and Rachel Laurence from the New Economics Foundation.

Business owners Rosie Wolfenden (Tatty Devine), Len Maloney (JC Motors) and Sarah Haque (Urban Species) took to the stage to tell their stories and express their fears for the future.

Earlier this month, the Council and East End Trades Guild launched a petition calling on the Government to provide support for businesses disproportionately affected.

Mayor Glanville said: "Our borough has a history of collective action; of standing up in the face of injustice.

"The sheer severity of the impact is unjustifiable if you have any care for the social, cultural or economic fabric of this area's communities."

Meg Hillier said she would make sure Hackney's voice was heard in Parliament, adding: "This is the biggest onslaught on small businesses that I have seen in my lifetime."

Len's garage in Haggerston works with a local charity to provide job opportunities and mentoring for young people. He said: "These increases threaten my livelihood and my small team of workers. At JC Motors we try to give our customers and our staff an honest break. I think we deserve the same treatment."

Ambulance base for volunteer paramedics

An artist's impression of the redevelopment of the Tower Court Estate, by Clapton Common VOLUNTEER paramedics have welcomed a deal that will enable them to expand their lifesaving work by moving into new Stamford Hill premises.

Hatzola of North London, an organisation that provides emergency medical treatment in the borough, is set to move into a bigger, modern ambulance station as part of the Council's redevelopment of the Tower Court Estate, near Clapton Common.

The agreement, approved in principle by the Council's Cabinet on 22 February, will give the charity a lease on commercial terms in the new development. The project will also deliver more than 130 new homes.

“Working in larger and improved facilities will have a wide-ranging impact on the services we deliver”

It is part of Hackney's Estate Regeneration Programme, which will result in nearly 3,000 properties built at 18 sites across the borough, with more than half for social rent and shared ownership.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: “I'm delighted that Hatzola will be expanding into a bigger, better station as part of this fantastic regeneration project, which will mean their lifesaving work helps more people in Hackney.

“Partnering with local residents and organisations like this helps make sure the thousands of much-needed new homes we're building are rooted in their community.

“Despite receiving no government funding for new social housing, we're determined to build thousands of genuinely affordable homes for local people struggling with rocketing rents and house prices.”

Under the lease, Hatzola will move from its current base in nearby Rookwood Road to the new development. The charity's trained members aim to provide treatment within minutes of a call, as well as providing ongoing care for residents with chronic medical conditions.

Yanky Sorotzkin, Trustee of Hatzola, said: “We welcome this exciting opportunity presented to us by Hackney Council for the development and growth of Hatzola. We look forward to working in larger and improved facilities, which will have a wide-ranging impact on the services we deliver for the community.”

Construction work will begin next year.

Change afoot at Marsh

WORK has begun on a new, high-quality changing facility on Hackney Marshes.

The project led by the Council in partnership with the Football Foundation and England and Wales Cricket Board will replace an outdated pavilion, on North Marsh, which has reached the end of its life.

It will include 16 changing rooms and four officials' rooms, alongside a new social space that will overlook the cricket show-pitch. It is a one-storey building designed to be as unobtrusive as possible.

The facility will be complemented by new landscaping, and a stand of poplars. The parking area will incorporate sustainable drainage, meaning the surface will be fully permeable.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for

Neighbourhoods, Transport and Parks, said: "Lots of people told us they wanted this new pavilion, so it's fantastic that we're finally able to start building it. We've worked closely with the architect and landscape architect to make sure it complements the beauty and wildlife of the Marshes."

During construction, the Council will work with contractors to minimise the impact of the works, so the Marsh can be accessed as normal. The building is due to be completed early next year.

Football match to kick off Fairtrade Fortnight

THERE will be fair play from Hackney Wick FC as they kick off Fairtrade Fortnight this year using ethically sourced footballs for their match on 4 March.

The Bala Sport Fairtrade footballs are produced in Sialkot, Pakistan, by men and women who are paid a fair wage and benefit from fair working conditions and a Fairtrade premium that helps fund health and education projects.

The Council will also be giving out the footballs to schools and youth groups across the borough during Fairtrade Fortnight, with under-11s matches held at Hackney Marshes on 11 March.

Fairtrade Fortnight runs from 27 February to 12 March. The Hackney Fairtrade group will be hosting a family fun day in Gillett Square, Dalston, on 11 March, from 2pm to 5pm. Families will be able to play games and learn more about how shopping Fairtrade can make a difference to people's lives in some of the poorest countries around the world.

News in brief

Try a 'momentous' challenge

WALK over hot coals and broken glass to help those in end-of-life care, as part of St Joseph's Hospice fundraising challenge next month.

Nearly 40 people raised more than £15,000 for the hospice, based in Mare Street, when they walked across fire last year.

Now, on 23 March, the hospice is adding the glass walk, which involves walking on broken sterilised glass, laid out across a walkway and lit by LEDs, and challenging residents to raise even more funds for the hospice. St Joseph's needs to find £7million annually to provide essential care for patients. Rhasan Brunner took part last year. He said: "I'm excited to do both walks, to raise money for the hospice and enjoy two fun, creative and momentous challenges." Walkers will receive training from experts at UK Firewalk, a T-shirt and a certificate. Friends and family are welcome to come along and cheer them on. Registration is £25, with a minimum sponsorship pledge of £100, or £175 for both events. To book, or for further info, e-mail: fundraising@stjh.org.uk; or call: 020 8525 3200.

Award-winners in 2016: teacher Brenda Sullivan; community champion Caroline Gregory; drug & alcohol worker, Thomas Bailie; doula, Rachel Klien

The borough's best

DO YOU know an unsung hero, whose achievements are helping make Hackney a better place to live, work or study? Then the Council wants to hear about them.

After the success of last year's first ever I Love Hackney Mayor's Civic Awards, there is another opportunity to recognise, celebrate and reward the people who go above and beyond the call of duty to help their community.

Residents are being asked to nominate potential award-winners. Somebody who has overcome an extraordinary difficulty for example; a fabulous teacher or carer; a person who has shown immense courage; a tireless fundraiser or volunteer; or an individual who has gone that extra mile to better their neighbourhood. The Council wants to hear their stories.

“ Hackney is the great place it is today thanks to the hard work of those who go the extra mile for the community ”

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: “Hackney is the great place it is today thanks to the hard work of those who go the extra mile for their community. The I Love Hackney Civic Awards allows them to get the recognition they deserve.

“I would encourage everyone who knows someone who has made an important contribution to life in Hackney to put in a nomination and help us celebrate the best of our borough.”

Nominees can be any age and from any background. However, a parent's or guardian's permission is needed to nominate someone under 18.

Brenda Sullivan was one of last year's winners. She had been a teacher at Holmleigh Primary School for more than 40 years and recently retired. She was nominated by her school because she still continued to teach there, promoting physical education, and helping pupils represent the borough at national and international levels.

She said at the time:

“I'm so honoured to win this award. After this term I will have done 44 years at the school, but I am still happy at the school and would like to make 50 years!”

Nominations close on 3 April. They will all be considered by a panel of judges. Three winners will be announced at the Council's AGM in May, where they will receive trophies and certificates.

Clissold crowdfunds for swings

A young visitor enjoys the swings at Clissold Park

RESIDENTS are crowdfunding in order to get new swings installed at Clissold Park, the popular Stoke Newington green space, which welcomes more than three million visitors per year.

Caroline Millar, who chairs the park user group, said: “The park has a wonderful playground, especially for younger children, but parents and carers have told us they are always having to queue for the swings.

“If we can get enough people to pledge just a little bit before spring, we will be able to install three new swings this year. We'd be very happy to support any local organisations who'd like to do some fundraising or talk to local businesses who might like to help.”

Hefty court fine for illegal roof extension

A COMPANY that built a huge loft extension without planning permission in a conservation area, then ignored an enforcement notice to demolish it, has been slapped with a £40,000 fine.

Sternglade, which owns the property in Stoke Newington, was also ordered to pay costs of £1,760 and a victim surcharge of £170 on 3 February at Thames Magistrates Court.

The property in Evering Road, E5, is a large Victorian villa, currently let out as flats, and is in the Northwold and Cazenove Conservation Area. The roof, which had been extended to the back and side, was unacceptable in terms of design and scale.

The Council originally took enforcement action in 2009, ordering the demolition of the extension by March 2010. When the company failed to do so, the Council prosecuted.

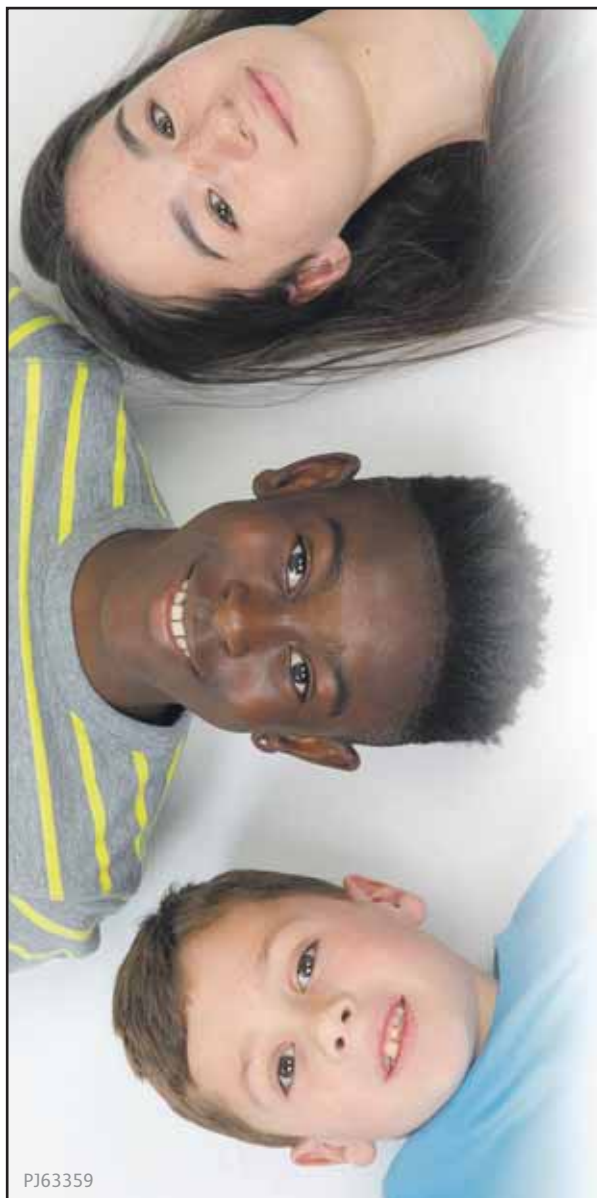

Sternglade pleaded guilty to the offence of failure to comply with a Council enforcement notice and had to pay £4,700 in fines and costs.

Between 2009 and 2010, it gained planning permission for an alternative scheme, but did not take any steps to rectify the building. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/planning

Anna Fiorentini Film and Theatre School teaches over 300 students at various locations

DID YOU KNOW?

(Clockwise from above) The drama school's variety show; former pupils Jermain Jackman ('The Voice UK'), Orla Hill ('Swallows and Amazons') and Tahj Miles ('The Lion King')

Stage skills boost confidence

WHAT do 'EastEnders', 'Swallows and Amazons', 'The Voice UK' and 'The Lion King' all have in common? They all feature stars trained in a single drama school in Hackney.

"I started taking classes when I was seven," says Tahj Miles. Now aged 15, his starry CV already includes playing Simba in the award-winning West End musical 'The Lion King' and Nipper in Cameron Mackintosh's production of 'Oliver!'.

"I left the theatre school accidentally," he continues. Adding: "Because they were so brilliant at getting me acting jobs, I never had any time to go classes!"

The school in question is Anna Fiorentini. Founded in Homerton 16 years ago, it has been putting Hackney's children on stage and screen ever since.

Jermain Jackman, 2014's winner of the 'The Voice UK', is a former student.

But, says the founder after whom the school was named: "Although we are proud of our students who get professional performing work, we are just as proud of those whose academic studies improve thanks to their increased confidence and thirst for learning."

Saturdays see students aged seven to 18 filing into Clapton Girls Academy, where Anna runs a timetable of drama, song, dance and film skills. The teachers are all industry professionals: Mark Short has choreographed stars including Tina Turner and Peter Andre; 'Downton Abbey' and 'Coronation Street' actress Emma Keele tutors too; as does the former associate director of the Royal Exchange Manchester, Jacob Murray.

In addition, there are optional exams, Hackney Empire showcases, and competitions to further stretch students, while the performance troupe does charitable tours of care homes and hospitals, as well as glitzy corporate gigs. Among the troupe's members is 14-year-old Orla Hill, star of the recent film 'Swallows and Amazons'.

She says: "The most important things I learned, aside from dance and drama skills, was self confidence and a sense of responsibility. Performing as a team means you have to respect each other and work hard together."

The school now also holds classes in Camden, Greenwich and Tower Hamlets. Courses also include Fiorentini Weenies for four to six-year-olds.

And this year, the school launches its first five-day Easter holiday school.

Born in Hackney herself, and still living here today, Anna says: "The school is about giving as many of Hackney's young people as possible the opportunity to unlock their potential."

Anna launched the Fiorentini Foundation in 2011, to provide bursaries for less privileged children. Then in 2014, she launched Stage & the City after-work classes for adults, with all profits going to the foundation.

And this month sees the launch of the Hackney Today Scholarship, offering one reader, aged seven to 18, a year of free drama classes. See more info.

Today, Tahj is studying at the famous BRIT school of performing arts and features on CBBC show 'Class Dismissed'. He looks back on his time at Anna Fiorentini fondly.

He says: "They taught me how to harness my natural talent in acting and performance. They nurtured me and helped me grow into a fully fledged actor. But they also taught me to have a vision and focus on my future."

■ The Easter School, for seven to 16 year-olds, is on from 3 to 7 April. Quote 'Hackney Today' and pay £150 (normal price £180).

■ The next Saturday School term starts on 22 April. Quote 'Hackney Today' and receive a 20 per cent discount on the first term.

■ Adults interested in Stage and the City classes can also get a 20 per cent discount off by quoting 'Hackney Today'.

Awards ceremony at the Empire celebrates the borough's best

MORE than 400 people cheered on the borough's sports stars as they were presented with awards by Olympic sprinter Asha Philip and comedian Kat B.

They were appearing at the 11th annual Hackney Sports Awards, which celebrated the sporting excellence of local schools, students, older people, coaches and volunteers, at Hackney

“I would like to congratulate all the winners and nominees for their hard work. They are a credit to the borough”

Empire on 8 February.

Keiran McNulty and Antony Newman were presented with a Fit4Health award after showing great commitment, enthusiasm and dedication to getting healthy. This particular award is given to those who take part in physical activity after a stroke.

Keiran McNulty spent six weeks in hospital, couldn't eat and was wheelchair bound after suffering a stroke. But taking part in the Fit4Health scheme, changed his life.

Keiran said: “I feel stronger and can now dress and wash myself. My mobility has improved. Overall, I feel more independent. I didn't want to go to the programme at first, but it has made such a difference.”

Hackney Wick Football Club won the Sports Club of the Year award. Founded in 2015, the entirely volunteer-run club has managed to engage with more than 1,200 local people and raised over £16,000 to provide free and affordable access to grassroots football.

Bobby Kasanga, the club's founder, said: “We're delighted that all of the hard work of our players and volunteers has been recognised. Hackney Wick FC will continue to grow as a community club that celebrates the diversity of our borough, and creates an atmosphere where people from all walks of life feel welcome. We hope to see everyone at our next game.”

Year (under 25) went to 21-year-old kayak slalom and white-water rafter, Vanessa Humphrey.

She said: "I feel amazing about winning this award. This event is amazing, you see how much talent there is in the borough."

The audience was also treated to a question-and-answer session with Asha Philip, who is not only an Olympic bronze medallist in the 4 x 100m relay, but was the first British woman to achieve a global 100m title, aged just 16.

Asha talked about her love of sport and encouraged young people to aim high.

She said: "Though it might take lots of hard work to achieve your goals, it is worth it in the end."

Other winners included Noah Williams, an Olympic diver who won Sports Personality of the Year (under 16); Ian Bruce, who won Coach of the Year; and the London Youth Games Boys Judo team, which took the Team of the Year (under 18) award.

Nikita Petrak, 14, who is a member of the London Youth Games Boys Judo team, hoped other young people would be encouraged to join them.

He said: "I would encourage people to do judo. Everyone in the team is really nice; we would support you."

Further awards were presented by the Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville; the Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Rosemary Sales; Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community Services; Cllr Michael Desmond; and Tony Wallace, Regional Director of GLL, the Council's leisure partner.

Cllr Burke said: "These awards recognise the high calibre of sporting talent and coaching we have in Hackney. I would like to congratulate all the winners and nominees for their hard work and effort during their sports performances and behind the scenes. They are a credit to the borough."

THEY call me the baking lady," says Alice Boyle. Adding: "The embarrassing thing is, I have no expertise in baking at all."

Alice is the founder of Luminary Bakery. Tempting smells of tray bakes, cakes and breads have been wafting out from its Stoke Newington premises since it moved there from Limehouse last year. It is, however, no typical bakery.

"My dream was always to provide a safe space for marginalised women to build their confidence and employability. Baking just turned out to be the best way to do that," she says.

Growing up, Alice knew she wanted to do a job that was helpful. It was not until she travelled to Thailand that she saw a way to do that, however.

She explains: "I was volunteering for an organisation that helped former sex workers rebuild their lives. It seemed like such a brilliant, holistic way to support them. And I knew that Bangkok wasn't the only place where women were being exploited. There were plenty back home who needed help too."

Returning to London, she found a job at charity-run café Kahaila, in Brick Lane, and took every opportunity to canvass opinions from local women.

"I did outreach work among women in prostitution around Whitechapel," she says. Adding: "I went to meetings to see what was already on offer. I even got to know the homeless lady who came into the café to use our loos."

Slowly, her idea began to take form. Alice says: "Two members of the little team I built were talented bakers, so it made sense, we could teach disadvantaged women the professional skills of baking, empower them to build a career, and sell their products in the café."

As an idea, it was brilliantly simple. The reality, however, involved blood, sweat and tears.

"Building contacts, getting funding, finding premises and equipment... It's all extremely hard work when you're a tiny team running on little more than passion. But it does mean we find creative ways around problems," she says.

In September 2014, Alice and her team of four finally welcomed their first group of trainees.

"We get referrals from a number of different agencies, charities and hostels and end up with a cohort of up to seven women per group," she says.

They can range in age from 18 to 65. For one day a week, over six months, they all learn how to bake professionally. Slowly, confidence and skills that have been eroded by abuse, crime, prostitution or poverty begin to bloom again. And on graduating, they receive a Food Hygiene Level 2 certificate, and an OCR entry level Life Skills qualification.

"One woman burst into tears when she saw her first loaf of bread come out of the oven. She just couldn't believe that she had created something so perfect," says Alice.

In fact, the goods that trainees turn out are so perfect that Luminary now supplies 12 cafés across London, caters for private events including weddings, and teaches classes to the public.

It was this expansion that prompted the bakery's relocation to their new, bigger premises in Stoke Newington last year. It has a larger kitchen, an area for mums and children, and a training room for students. Making it happen however, was 'a struggle,' says Alice. The team launched a crowdfunding campaign to fund building work, offered baked goods and master-classes in return for generosity, and accepted donated equipment.

Finally, however, the effort paid off.

"In these premises we can take two cohorts of trainees at once so we're helping twice as many women," says Alice.

In April, the last phase of building work is due to be completed, and the team plans to open a café, too.

Until then, however, we must make do with walking past and catching the tantalizingly sweet smell of success.

Pop along to a cycle pit stop

CYCLISTS have been getting 2017 off to a smooth start by taking advantage of free bike checks at Council-run cycle pit stops.

Whether it's a brand new bike that needs a once over, or an old one in need of some TLC,

“I bought my son a new bike, which I've brought to be security marked today” bike mechanics are on hand at these events to help with maintenance issues.

The police also security mark bikes, so they can be identified and returned to owners if stolen.

Dalston resident Sarah Parish attended a recent pit stop at Butterfield Green and explained why getting a bike security marked is important. She said: “I bought a bike for my son on eBay, and because I'd had my own bike marked at a pit stop last year, I recognised the red bike register sticker on the photo.

“When the bike arrived it looked like the seller had scraped off the sticker, which seemed odd. I contacted the police, who confirmed it was stolen and managed to reunite it with its owner. I got a refund from eBay and bought my son a new bike, which I've brought to be security marked. Anyone who owns a bike should get it security marked, and always ask the seller if it's been registered before buying a second-hand bike.”

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, Transport and Parks, said: “Even if you don't have a bike, pop down to a pit stop for advice on how to start cycling. We are getting rid of rat runs, improving junctions and putting in cycle crossings to make cycling in the borough safer and more attractive.

“We offer free cycle training sessions for adults and families, and advise on the best and quietest routes throughout the borough.”

Hundreds of extra bins to replace housing estates' old-fashioned chutes

THE Council is closing 1950s-era waste chutes and providing hundreds of extra bins in a bid to encourage more recycling on housing estates.

Waste chutes were built into many post-war blocks to make it convenient for residents to dispose of their rubbish. At that time, households produced far less rubbish: most groceries weren't pre-packaged, milk came in reusable glass bottles, and the rubbish that was produced was generally small and light.

Nowadays, food is pre-packaged, homes are full of consumer electronics delivered in bulky cardboard packaging, and it is easier to replace a T-shirt for a few pounds than repair it.

As well as producing more waste, residents are recycling more. In 2002, Hackney only recycled one per cent of its rubbish; now it's over 25 per cent. The volume and type of waste that gets thrown down chutes also means they easily get blocked, in fact, the Council spends about £75,000 each year unblocking chutes.

Therefore waste chutes are being sealed and new bin stores built instead, with recycling and rubbish bins next to each other. Ninety-four chute entrances have been blocked off at Milton Gardens Estate in Stoke Newington, and similar work will take place on Hoxton's Geffrye Estate and Broadway House, E8.

The Council spends about £75,000 each year unblocking chutes

Get composting

With savings of up to 75%, there's never been a better time to get composting.

It's the most environmentally friendly way of getting rid of your food and garden waste. The compost produced will also help your plants grow greener. Even if you don't have a garden you can get composting on your patio or balcony with our smaller bins and wormeries.

Shazia Mirza: For one night only

3 March, Hoxton Hall, 130 Hoxton St, N1 6SH

"THE Kardashians made me do it" is one phrase you probably don't expect to hear in conjunction with the words "I ran away to join ISIS".

But then, comedian Shazia Mirza has never been afraid of the unexpected. For one night only, the award-winning stand-up and star of 'The Now Show' is bringing her otherwise sold out tour to Hoxton Hall. Organised by Upfront Comedy, 'The Kardashians Made Me Do It' examines the nature of offence, the dangers of politically correct liberalism, and the sinister intrusion of ISIS into the lives of young British Asian women.

It will be daring, it will be thought provoking. And it will be very, very funny.

Tickets are £12.50. £10.50 concessions are available.

Michael
Morpurgo's
'Running Wild'

'RUNNING Wild', an adventure story by award-winning author Michael Morpurgo, is brought to life at Hackney Empire with extraordinary heart, vibrant colour and creativity to wow audiences of all ages. Based on a true story, Lilly goes to Indonesia with her mum, not just for a holiday, but for a new start. However, while Lilly is riding an elephant called Oona, the tsunami hits. Oona charges into the jungle to escape the danger of the beach, with her young rider desperately clinging on. Lilly must now learn to survive in the rainforest.

With puppetry design and direction by Finn Caldwell and Toby Olié, who both previously worked on the 2011 film 'War Horse' (also based on another Morpurgo novel), this spectacular production tells a moving story of love, loss, loyalty and living for the moment. For more info, or to buy tickets, call: 020 8985 2424; or visit: www.hackneyempire.co.uk/whats-on/running-wild/

Wake Up Gigs

5 March, 1-5pm, Concrete Space, 56 Shoreditch High St, E1 6PQ

THERE'S nothing like a gig to wake you up, and no one needs waking up more than parents of small children.

That's the thinking behind 'Wake Up Gigs', a series of live gigs by respected artists especially for parents, with kids welcome, too. Their first event was held last November, where parents and their babies bopped along to the melodies of MALKA, Shanade Morrow and Pips. It proved such a success that another has been announced for 5 March, with profits going to the children's charity Barnardo's. Between the respectable hours of one and five in the afternoon, Concrete Space in Shoreditch will shake to the rhythms of Joel Sarakula and Itchy Teeth, plus other special guests. A very welcome break from the sound of screaming babies. Tickets cost £12.50 for adults, £5.50 for children. For more information and to book, visit: wakeupgigs.com

PREVIEW*TRANSFORM 2017*9 March, Rich Mix, 35-47 Bethnal Green Rd, E1 6LA

TRANSFORM 2017 is an evening exploring the concept of transformation, through four British short documentaries.

Short Sighted Cinema is known for curating diverse and compelling programmes for all audiences, and this evening's line-up is no exception. Alice Russell's 'Men Buy Sex' uses testimonies from men about their experiences of paying for sex, but with women lip-syncing their words; while 'Fay Presto, Queen of Close Up' is Hanna Aquilin's portrait of the legendary cabaret magician.

Also in store is the fascinating 'Giles Duley: #MoreThanAnImage' by Tom Martin and Matt Devine; as well as Gibran Ramos's stunning '8.1 Degrees of Guilt' (pictured above). There will also be live autobiographical performances from special guests and a chance to meet the filmmakers during a Q&A session.

F32 Club Throw bronze medallist, Gemma Prescott, visited Urswick School to speak about the forthcoming World Para Athletics Championships

Inspiring Urswick

URSWICK School pupils were wowed by tales from the Paralympic Games, when bronze medallist Gemma Prescott visited them this month.

The F32 Club Throw bronze medallist spoke to students about her sporting career, from winning bronze at the World Championships in 2011, to her current preparations for this summer's World Para Athletics Championships.

Gemma said: "It was a pleasure to come and visit the students. They were really interested in my journey as an elite athlete and what it takes to compete at the highest level of the sport.”

“The students were interested in it what it takes to compete at the highest level”

The forthcoming championships will be held at the London Stadium in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, from 14 to 23 July, and 25,000 tickets have been set aside for London school groups, at the heavily discounted price of £3 per pupil.

Urswick Headteacher Richard Brown explained that his school would be taking advantage of the concession, so that students could be a part of 'this once in a lifetime event'.

He added: "We are a school so close to the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, so to have an athlete who has competed there already at a Paralympic Games, and is going for a place on the podium once again, was very inspiring for our students."

Surreal artists' work on show

A GROUP of small surrealists are showing their work in a new exhibition at #TAG, the recently opened art gallery at Gayhurst Primary School, E8. The grandly titled 'El Surrealismo/Surrealism Ole' showcases the work of Year 3 and 4 children, who have been exploring Spanish culture as part of a recent geography topic.

With the help of local arts education organisation Art Hoppers, the children studied the great Spanish painters Miro, Picasso and Dali, before creating their own playful artworks, including an interactive reworking of Picasso's famous 'Weeping Woman' and a surrealist game of 'Guess Who?'.

Quentin, a pupil from Rio class, commented: "I think our work was really surreal because when I stuck all of the shapes together, it made something really weird, like a ball jumping over a tree all the way to the moon..."

The 'El Surrealismo/Surrealism Ole' exhibition runs until 28 April at the #TAG gallery at Gayhurst School.

Viewing is by appointment only. E-mail: admin@gayhurst.hackney.sch.uk; or call: 020 7254 6138.

Bridge joins global call for a safer internet

PUPILS from Bridge Academy joined hundreds of schools across the world to demand a less dangerous online world on Safer Internet Day.

Co-ordinated by the UK Safer Internet Centre on 7 February, the event invited participants to 'be the change: unite for a better internet'.

Children and young people were encouraged to speak up about the digital issues that most affect them, using the hashtag #SID2017.

A Year 7 student commented: "It was a good exercise. I learnt to think carefully about anything that I share online, and that even young people could get into trouble if they share inappropriate images."

Another Year 7 pupil added: "What I thought was interesting was that images can make people feel uncomfortable about themselves or their body image. This has made me think about what I share online."

Chris Brown, Bridge Academy Principal, said: "The internet is an incredibly powerful resource, and it is essential that young people are equipped with the knowledge and understanding to use it safely and responsibly."

Members of the current Hackney Youth Parliament taking part in a debate

Stand and be counted

YOUNG people are being asked to put themselves forward for elections to the UK Youth Parliament (UKYP), after the deadline for candidates was extended to 10 March.

Anyone aged 11 to 18 can stand, and if elected they will represent Hackney's young people at national events, including the UKYP annual sitting in the House of Commons.

The UKYP provides opportunities for young people to use their voice to bring about social change

“The Young Parliament provides opportunities to bring about social change” through meaningful representation and campaigning.

Hackney has one member and one deputy member on the UKYP. As well as representing Hackney's young people at official events, they help co-ordinate an annual consultation with young people in the borough, as part of the UKYP's national Make Your Mark initiative, which helps decide on two campaigning issues for the next year.

Nearly one million young people across the UK participated in last year's consultation.

To stand for the UKYP, people need to be aged 11 to 18, and live, work or study in Hackney.

They must be available to take part in an election on 20 March, and be able to commit to at least two weekends and some evening work over the course of the year.

The deadline for applications has been extended to 10 March.

Apply online by clicking the 'Get Elected!' link, or visit the 'Get Involved' pages at: www.younghackney.org

To find out more about the UKYP role, call Yasser Hussain on: 020 8356 6236; or e-mail: yasser.hussain@hackney.gov.uk

News in brief

Apprenticeships at top firms

A NEW apprenticeship programme is offering Hackney young people the chance to hone their CVs, while learning from some of the UK's biggest transport companies. Created with Peabody housing association, the TfL Supplier Skills programme will be open to young people aged 16 to 24. Based at Hackney's BSix college, apprentices will receive in-depth and practical advice about the working world from companies including Stagecoach and Laing O'Rourke.

Over the course of several weeks, they will learn how to write an effective CV, deliver convincing presentations, and identify strengths and weaknesses, before putting their new-found skills to the test in mock interviews.

A short work placement will also be available, while Stagecoach and KeolisAmey Docklands are offering the chance to be fast-tracked through their own company apprenticeship schemes.

Dana Skelley OBE, Head of the Graduate and Apprenticeship Board at TfL, said: "It's vital that we inspire young people from a range of backgrounds to consider a career in transport. This programme will enable them to gain real experience in the industry and realise where their strengths lie."

TfL hopes young people will consider a career in transport

Best foot forward with Orient

LEYTON Orient is recruiting its next intake of teenagers interested in a career in the football industry. The football club's Trust is offering the opportunity to both male and female 16 to 18-year-olds.

Students will study full-time for a BTEC Sport qualification at Level 1, 2 or 3, combined with football training and matches, representing Leyton Orient Trust in 11-a-side fixtures. They can also gain additional vocational qualifications, such as the FA Level One Coaching Award and Sports Leaders Level Two Award, as well as work experience and volunteering placements in the sports industry.

To apply, e-mail your details to: courses@leytonorienttrust.org.uk; or call: 020 8556 5973. Football trials will take place on 4 April from 11am to 1pm. For more info, visit: www.leytonorient.com/news/article/play-coach-study-2246215.aspx#ZmM03LV6HKIKYVED.99

Trying rock climbing with support from national disability charity Sense

The new rock stars

A LEADING national disability charity has launched a radical new programme in Hackney: rock climbing for people who are deaf and blind.

Supported by a Sports England grant of £400,000, the six-week course at Castle Climbing Centre, in Stoke Newington, started this month. It is part of a wider programme by charity Sense to get more disabled people practicing sport across England. The rock-climbing programme is free and open to over 18s who have sight and hearing impairments, or complex needs.

Taylor Huxster, Regional Sports Co-ordinator at Sense, said: "Rock climbing is generally considered an 'extreme sport', but with the right support it can be accessible for people with sight and hearing impairments.

"For the people Sense supports, climbing provides a whole host of benefits over and above improving strength and fitness. It promotes balance and sensory awareness, as well as the benefits of social interaction."

A second six-week course is planned at the same venue in March.

News in brief

Free 40+ health check

LOCAL GP practices are offering free health checks to residents aged 40 to 74.

The NHS Health Check is an opportunity for people to take control of their health, review their lifestyle and make changes, from exercising more and drinking less alcohol, to switching to a healthier diet and stopping smoking. The check helps to prevent cardiovascular diseases such as heart attacks and stroke, which are Britain's second biggest killer. Evidence shows that having the check can also help lower the risk of developing kidney disease, type 2 diabetes and some types of dementia.

More than 35,000 people are entitled to have a free health check in Hackney and every GP surgery in the borough offers this service to patients.

Dr Brewer, a GP at Lower Clapton Group Practice, said: "We know these checks can make a real difference to people's health and can help them take the steps to improve the quality of their lives now and avoid serious ill-health in the future.

The check is simple and quick, and we will support you to make changes to your lifestyle which could help you stay well and active."

Help improve services for disabled residents

A USER led training programme from Hackney CVS is helping to give people an opportunity to improve Council services for disabled residents.

The award-winning training programme is led by a group of residents who collect real-life – positive and negative – experiences from disabled people in Hackney who use Council services.

These anonymous case studies are then shared among Council staff, who take part in the training with the aim of helping to change the way services are run, by reflecting on the experiences of those who use them. This is the first time that this type of training has been used at the Council.

It won the Patient's Association Award for Innovative Ways of Involvement in 2015 for the training it delivered for NHS and social care staff in City & Hackney.

The group is now looking to recruit more disabled residents and their carers to join the group, and design training for Council staff. Participants will receive free training in PowerPoint, the theory of the social model of disability, equalities, and disability language code.

App to track sugar, salt and fat in your diet

AS new research reveals that 38 per cent of London's 10 to 11-year-olds are overweight or obese, Public Health England is urging parents to take control of their children's diets.

Youngsters across England, on average, consume almost three sugar cubes during breakfast alone. The NHS Change4Life campaign has launched a 'Be Food Smart' app, allowing parents to scan barcodes on food products and check the levels of sugar, saturated fat and salt.

Dr Yvonne Doyle, London regional director for Public Health England, said: "The latest child obesity figures show just how important it is for families to know what they're eating. Our app helps parents to choose healthier options for their children."

The app is free to download from the iTunes Store or Google Play.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – a social enterprise restaurant alongside the Regent’s Canal in Shoreditch. Waterhouse hosts Shoreditch Trust’s Blue Marble Training programme, which provides 16 to 25-year-olds with training and pastoral support to enable their transition to independent living and employment.

Cauliflower tagliatelle

Serves 4

Preparation time 1 hour

Cooking time 45 mins

Ingredients

- 2 heads of cauliflower
- 200g kale
- 100g pumpkin seeds
- 300g tagliatelle pasta
- 150g thyme
- 50g rosemary
- 2 shallots (roughly chopped)
- 200ml double cream.

- Cook for around 30 minutes until the cauliflower is soft
- Add the double cream and continue to cook for 10 minutes
- Using a hand blender, blend into a creamy puree
- Toast the pumpkin seeds under a grill for a few minutes, or in the oven for 2-3 minutes, constantly shaking so they don’t burn
- Boil the kale in a pot of water for around 1 minute. Leave to cool then rinse and chop into smaller pieces
- Add the tagliatelle to a pot of boiling water and cook until al dente
- Heat the cauliflower puree in a small sauté pan on low heat. Add the roasted cauliflower and pasta and cook for around 2 minutes
- Add the kale and cook for 3 more minutes, adding water if it becomes too thick
- Season to taste.

Method

- Cut one head of cauliflower into small florets
- Season the florets, and roast in the oven for around 10 minutes
- Boil a pot of water
- Cut the other cauliflower head into small pieces and add to the water with the shallots, thyme and rosemary, ensuring the water is just covering the cauliflower

Waterhouse – through Blue Marble Training – supports young people across the borough towards careers in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, income from this enterprise goes back into training programmes across the borough.

Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open Mon to Fri, 9am to 3pm. Evenings and weekends are available for large bookings and private events. For more info, visit: www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

For bookings e-mail: eat@waterhouserestaurant.co.uk; or call: 020 7033 0123.

Have your say on development of the ‘Dalston Quarter’

THE Council is gathering views on the development of a new cultural quarter in the centre of Dalston, aimed at protecting and enhancing the area’s reputation as one of London’s most creative and dynamic neighbourhoods.

The ‘Dalston Quarter’ refers to a group of Council-owned buildings in the area around Ashwin Street and parts of Dalston Lane.

Over the last few years, the Council has been working with residents, businesses and community groups to explore how it can ensure the long-term future of these buildings, and their role in providing cultural and creative industry-led employment spaces, which could include affordable workspace.

The development would help to secure the sensitive refurbishment of buildings with heritage value.

Following an initial consultation, a number of draft development principles have been agreed to guide the future direction of the Dalston Quarter project. These are now ready for further consultation with the wider local community. These principles are:

1. Recognising the existing buildings and organisations which use them, alongside future opportunities for the area
2. Provide a wide range of spaces to compliment the cultural and creative reputation of the area, and promote collaboration between the organisations located there.

3. Ensure high-quality buildings and public open space.

To find out more, or comment on the draft principles, e-mail: deliveryteam@hackney.gov.uk; visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk/planning-regulatory-services/dalston-quarter-consultation/; or call: 020 8356 1318 and talk to a planning officer.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2014. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville, was directly elected by the borough in September 2016. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, email: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3269. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Rosemary Sales.
